The Best Way to Clean a Granite Countertop – Inexpensively!Figuring out the best way to clean a granite countertop that youve sunk a great deal of money into can keep one up nights! Well, put your mind at rest. We know exactly what you need to do to keep that investment in peak condition without costing you an arm and a leg! So read on to learn the best way to clean a granite countertop.Despite the seemingly hundreds of products claiming to be the best way to clean a granite countertop, the truly best (and cheapest!) way is right in your home! Just grab that bottle of isopropyl rubbing alcohol and youre halfway to the cleanest, shiniest, and, yes, best way to clean a granite countertop.Many cleaning supply retailers may claim the best way to clean a granite countertop employs the use of harsh chemicals. Not so! To clean any kind of stone product, its smart to use a product with a neutral pH. Cleaners that contain acidic ingredients, including vinegar, can cause scratching and even deep etches. Alcohol, on the other hand, with a pH of around 7.0, is one of two ingredients needed for the best way to clean a granite countertop. The other? Good, old-fashioned liquid dishwashing detergent. When you add a few drops of say, Dawn dishwashing detergent to a quarter-cup of alcohol, then fill the rest of a quart-size spray bottle with water, youve got yourself the best way to clean a granite countertop for only a few, measly cents. Compare that to the $5 or $6 youll pay for those expensive (and potentially damaging) products that youve mistakenly thought to be the best way to clean a granite countertop.Other things to keep in mind for the best way to clean a granite countertop include maintenance and prevention. Maintain your beautiful stone by blotting spills immediately and then deep cleaning weekly with your homemade alcohol/dish soap solution. Prevent damaging your stone by avoiding placing anything acidic directly on it, which includes tomatoes, oranges, lemons, limes, or grapefruit. The juices of these food products are particularly damaging. Now that you know the best way to clean a granite countertop, relax! So dont let it keep you up Cypress Pro auto wash nights any longer. Youre empowered! Youve got the best way to clean a granite countertop under control now. So for heavens sake get some sleep!
