

A hardscape discussion should explain what a proposed path, patio or other feature is meant to do. Begin with the use of the space before choosing its individual details.

Describe the activity

Explain the routes, seating or other uses under consideration. Show the relationship to entrances and existing garden features. Keep essential use requirements separate from optional additions so the purpose of the proposal remains visible.

Connect the selections

Discuss layout and material preferences together. Ask which property conditions need assessment before an approach can be proposed. A photograph from another property can explain a preference without establishing that its construction is suitable here.

Read the complete scope

Check preparation, adjoining work and handoff arrangements as well as landscape design planning the main feature. Ask how undecided items are recorded. If a selection changes, keep the written description current so that the work can still be compared with the original brief.

R & G Almanza Landscape Inc provides landscaping and landscape design services.

Keep the next decision clear

Check the connections between this question and the rest of the yard brief. A change in one area may prompt another discussion, but it should not silently become an instruction to expand the scope.
