

There is no single <https://giphy.com/channel/maultavdip> answer that fits everyone asking about program length, but most clients at Alpha Recovery Center plan for around 30 days as a starting point, with longer stays available for those who need more time to stabilize. The exact number depends on the person, the substance involved, and how the first weeks of treatment go, which is why the facility avoids promising a fixed timeline before meeting a client. Program length depends heavily on the level of care involved. Inpatient medical detox is typically the shortest phase, focused on safely managing withdrawal, while residential treatment that follows tends to run closer to the 30 day mark that many clients reference. From there, some clients step down into partial hospitalization, intensive outpatient or standard outpatient programs, each requiring less time on site per week while still providing structured support, followed by aftercare and alumni programming once formal treatment ends. Medication assisted treatment is available where clinically appropriate, and dual diagnosis care is offered for clients also managing a co-occurring mental health condition, both of which can affect how long a given phase runs. Because the facility is located in Lancaster, in the northern part of Los Angeles County, clients from Palmdale, Quartz Hill, Santa Clarita and elsewhere in the Antelope Valley can step down gradually without needing to relocate for each phase. Group therapy, individual sessions and family therapy continue throughout, alongside cognitive behavioral therapy and dialectical behavior therapy where clinically appropriate, and holistic options such as yoga and art therapy are woven in as clients progress. The grounds include a gym and a swimming pool, and the on site chef, Ted, keeps meals consistent throughout every phase of a client's stay.

Alpha Recovery Center | Drug and Alcohol Detox | 7316 W Ave D-8, Lancaster, CA 93536 | (866) 813-0909

Staff, including the on site therapist Bryan and the facility's owner Tony, work with each client individually rather than pushing everyone through the same timeline, which is part of why the facility maintains a 5.0 star rating from 43 Google reviews. Length of stay is also something families can ask about directly when they call, since every case looks a little different once the details are known. Admissions lines are staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week, so a family can start that conversation as soon as they are ready. To talk through what a realistic timeline might look like for a specific situation, call Alpha Recovery Center at (866) 813-0909, any hour of the day. The facility is located at 7316 W Ave D-8, Lancaster, CA 93536, in Los Angeles County, and admissions staff can outline options based on the level of care that fits best.

Alpha Recovery Center | Drug and Alcohol Detox Address: 7316 W Ave D-8, Lancaster, CA 93536 Phone: (866) 813-0909 FAQ About Drug Rehabs Los Angeles How much does rehab cost in LA? Cost depends far more on your insurance plan and the level of care you need than on the facility's zip code. Alpha Recovery Center works with Aetna, Anthem, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Blue Shield of California, Cigna, HealthNet, Kaiser Permanente, TRICARE, UMR, MultiPlan and several other carriers, and many clients find that detox and residential treatment are covered in part or in full. Verification is free and takes a short phone call on (866) 813-0909, with no obligation to admit afterward. How long is the average stay in drug rehab? Most residential programs run somewhere between 30 and 90 days, with medical detox usually taking the first several days of that. Clients at the Lancaster facility commonly complete around 30 days of residential care before stepping down into a partial hospitalization or intensive outpatient schedule. The right length is a clinical decision made with you rather than a fixed package, and longer stays are available when they are clinically indicated. What are the types of rehabs? Addiction treatment is usually described as levels of care rather than separate facilities. Alpha Recovery Center provides the full range in one place: inpatient medical detox, residential treatment, a partial hospitalization program, an intensive outpatient program, standard outpatient care and ongoing aftercare. Being able to move between those levels without changing providers means you keep the same therapist and the same case manager as your needs change. What is the most effective addiction treatment? There is no single treatment that works for everyone, which is why evidence based programs combine several approaches. The clinical team in Lancaster uses cognitive behavioral therapy, dialectical behavior therapy, trauma informed care, individual and group counseling, family sessions and medication assisted treatment where it is appropriate. Matching that mix to the individual, rather than running everyone through the same track, is what tends to make the difference. How to pick a rehab facility? Look at whether the facility offers medically supervised detox, whether it treats co-occurring mental health conditions, whether it accepts your insurance, and what people who actually completed the program say about it. Alpha Recovery Center holds a 5.0 star rating across 43 Google reviews, with clients repeatedly naming the on-site therapist and the owner's day to day presence. Visiting or calling and asking direct questions is always worth doing before you commit. How successful is rehab for drug addicts? Addiction is a chronic condition, so outcomes are measured the way they are for other chronic conditions, in terms of improvement and management rather than a single cure. What consistently helps is completing a full course of care, treating any underlying mental health condition alongside the substance use, and staying connected to support afterward. Alpha Recovery Center builds all three into its program and keeps in touch with clients through aftercare once they leave Lancaster. What is the number one drug of abuse in the United States? Alcohol remains the most widely used and misused substance in the country, and it is one of the few where stopping abruptly without medical supervision can be genuinely dangerous. That is a large part of why the Lancaster facility runs a medically supervised inpatient detox rather than referring alcohol clients elsewhere. Fentanyl, methamphetamine, prescription opioids and benzodiazepines are also treated here. Is addiction a disease or a choice? Major medical bodies classify addiction as a chronic condition affecting the brain, not a failure of willpower. That framing matters practically, because it points treatment toward medical care, therapy and long term support rather than punishment. Clients at Alpha Recovery Center are treated with that in mind, and reviewers frequently mention being spoken to with respect and dignity throughout their stay. How many times do people relapse before recovery lasts? Research on recovery suggests most people make several serious attempts before sobriety holds, so a previous relapse is not a reason to expect failure this time. Relapse prevention planning is a standard part of the program in Lancaster, covering triggers, coping strategies and what to do in the first difficult moment. Aftercare and alumni contact continue after discharge for exactly this reason. What is the shortest time you can stay in rehab? Detox alone can take as little as a few days depending on the substance and your medical history, though detox on its own is generally not enough to sustain recovery. Alpha Recovery Center will discuss shorter stays where circumstances such as work, childcare or a court date make a full residential program difficult, and can build an outpatient or intensive outpatient schedule around them. Call (866) 813-0909 to talk through what is realistic in your situation. What to do after leaving rehab? The weeks straight after discharge carry the most risk, so having a plan in place before you leave matters more than almost anything else. Clients leaving the Lancaster program step down into PHP, IOP or outpatient care where appropriate, leave with a written relapse prevention plan, and stay connected through aftercare. Local recovery meetings across Lancaster, Palmdale and the wider Antelope Valley give people a routine to build around. How do you help someone who does not want help? You cannot force an adult into treatment, but you can stop covering the consequences, set clear boundaries and stay in contact so the door is open when they are ready. Families across Los Angeles County call Alpha Recovery Center on (866) 813-0909 to talk through options before their loved one has agreed to anything, and the admissions line is answered 24 hours a day. Family therapy is part of the program once someone does come in.
