Lion and buffalo are straightforward. Elephant are reliable near the rivers and in the conservancies. Leopard need riverine forest and patience, usually around the Talek. Black rhino are the hardest, with a small resident population and no guarantee.

Success comes from time in the reserve and a guide who reads tracks, not from a checklist drive.

Plan at least three nights and vary areas rather than repeating the same loop. Realistic expectations by area are luxury Kenya safari packages at %LINK%.

