Few local businesses in the Roanoke Valley can say they have been scrubbing kitchens and vacuuming carpets for more than four decades. The Happy Housekeepers can. Mary Jane Wszolek, President of Mar-Ja Enterprises, Inc., started the company in 1979, and more than four decades later it is still the cleaning service Roanoke families and business owners call when they want the job done properly the first time.

A Roanoke Valley Name Built One Home and Office at a Time

What began as a home cleaning operation grew steadily as customers asked for more. In 1986 the company formed Corporate Clean, a division dedicated to janitorial and commercial work, so offices, executive suites and medical facilities could get the same attention that homes were already getting. Later came specialized services for builders, contractors and apartment managers, along with move-in and move-out cleanings. The result is a true one-call cleaning service for the whole valley.

Longevity matters in this trade because it reflects how a company treats people. Mary Jane passed away suddenly in 1999, and the family carried on her work ethic, including the simple promise that has always been part of the business: satisfaction guaranteed. Today the company is led by President Paula Anderson and remains locally owned and operated from its office on Starkey Road in the Cave Spring area of southwest Roanoke County.
