

At Kollysphere's event specialists, we have used SMS and WhatsApp marketing to great effect for events across Malaysia. The team at Kollysphere understand the nuances of these channels and how to use them effectively. Kollysphere believe that direct messaging is an essential part of any event communication strategy. This guide will walk you through everything you need to know about using SMS and WhatsApp marketing for event updates.

The Power of Direct Messaging

SMS and WhatsApp also offer immediacy. When you send a message, it is delivered instantly. This is particularly valuable for time-sensitive updates, such as changes to the schedule, reminders about sessions, or urgent announcements. The key is to use them strategically and respectfully. The team at Kollysphere Events Kollysphere can help you understand the best practices for these channels.

Best Practices for SMS and WhatsApp Marketing

The first best practice is to get permission. Only send messages to people who have opted in to receive them. This is not just a legal requirement; it's also a matter of respect. People are more likely to engage with messages they have consented to receive. The ninth best practice is to monitor and measure. Track open rates, click-through rates, and responses. Use this data to improve your future campaigns. Kollysphere's event specialists can help you develop best practices for SMS and WhatsApp marketing.

How to Use These Channels at Every Stage

For corporate events, use WhatsApp to create a dedicated group for attendees. This allows for networking, Q&A, and real-time communication. The key is to use these channels strategically and to provide value with every message. Kollysphere's event specialists can help you develop practical applications for SMS and WhatsApp marketing.
